

Jeff D. McCullough

BIOGRAPHY

Jeff D. McCullough, a military veteran, currently lives in the Oklahoma City area and works at Tinker AFB. Jeff has a passion for Photography, is a licensed commercial pilot, an aircraft mechanic, and hopes to be a filmmaker someday. He started doing photography in high school when his family traveled to Colorado Springs for vacation. He rented a small plane and began taking pictures from this amazing visual vantage. He has created dazzling photographic images ever since.

The Veteran's Annual Art Exhibition/Contest keeps him growing as an artist as well as the gallery shows at IAO (Individual Artist of Oklahoma), and at the Paramount Theatre, both near downtown OKC. A total of six photographic awards were awarded to him over the last 5 years-two 1st place blue ribbons, 3 second, and 1 third place award.

Much of his work is aviation-related with multiple images of a variety of vintage military aircraft, modern aerospace weapon systems, private civilian, and commercial aircraft, Jeff also produces landscape, and architectural images as well.

A retired Navy man, he enjoyed many days traveling the world aboard five different aircraft carriers. He also worked on land bases maintaining state-of-the-art fighter aircraft. Getting close to these amazing machines with his digital SLR camera to record their enormous power, complexity, and charisma is second nature to him.
