personal BIO

David Stevens is a New York based film sound mixer, film producer, and screenwriter. He was raised in Hong Kong before moving to the United States. He studied electrical engineering at Oklahoma State University and political science at the University of Oklahoma. While in school, filmmaking became an interest and he began making independent films. In 2005, he began working with the Sundance Native American Initiative collaborating with Native American filmmakers Chad Burris, Sterlin Harjo and Blackhorse Lowe. David has worked with accomplished directors such as Nick Cassevettes, Michel Gondry, and Ric Burns. David has worked internationally as a sound recordist, traveling throughout Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America. In 2011, he produced the narrative film "Going Kinski." The film reinterprets locations and characters from the 1982 film, "Fitzcarraldo," by Werner Herzog. His adaptation of the novel "Flatbellies" by A.B. Hollingsworth is currently in development and slated to shoot summer of 2013.
